LOS ANGELES (Reuters) - A 10-year-old girl was found dead in a dank jail cell in California on Tuesday, days after being detained by U.S. Customs and Border Protection agents at the San Ysidro port of entry after traveling from Tijuana, Mexico. "This is another in a long line of heartbreaking deaths in immigration detention," said Kate Foley, deputy director of United We Dream, an immigrant advocacy group. The girl, identified only by the initials A.M.A., was in a holding cell with two other juveniles after she was taken into custody on Friday near a school in San Ysidro, a Customs and Border Protection spokesman said. Authorities have not yet released a cause of death but did say that the girl was in good health when she was detained. A.M.A. was taken to a hospital on Sunday with a rash that became septic, prompting hospital staff to pull the young girl from her cell, according to a Customs and Border
